Young Hollywood

These cute young stars in the making are already favorites amongst the paparazzi, thanks to their famous parents.

While filming The Tourist with Johnny Depp in Venice, Italy, Angelina Jolie still has time to dote on her kids. Jolie spent some quality time with the rarely photographed twins Vivienne Marcheline and Knox Leon, 1, on the balcony of the palace she and Brad Pitt are renting.

Gwen Stefani took her second stylish son, Zuma Nesta Rock Rosedale, nearly a year old, for a family outing in L.A. With a name like Zuma, there's no doubt (no pun intended!) he and his older brother, Kingston, will start a rock band of their own in the future.

Jessica Alba toted daughter Honor Marie Warren (father is producer Cash Warren), 2, for a day of shopping in L.A. Alba has three movies to watch out for: An Invisible Sign of My Own, Machete, and Meet the Fockers.

Sarah Jessica Parker brought one of her twins, Marion Loretta Elwell Broderick, on her regular school run with son James Wilkie, 7. Parker is getting ready to set the fashion scene ablaze with Sex and the City 2, May 27.

Nicole Richie took cutie Harlow Madden, 2, to dance class in L.A. Richie, who gave birth to son Sparrow Madden last September, is in tip-top shape and working hard on promoting her fashion line Winter Kate, after the success of her jewelry line House of Harlow 1960.

Jennifer Lopez, mother of twins Max and Emme, 2, didn't have to do any extra research to play a mother of twins onscreen in The Back Up Plan (hear an interview with Lopez at tribute.ca about how being a mom has changed her).

Celebrity Ups & Downs

Liev Schreiber, while filming the thriller Salt with Angelina Jolie and Johnny Depp, took sons Alexander, 2, and Samuel, 17 months, for some playtime without mom Naomi Watts. Look out for Watts to play a CIA agent in the upcoming Fair Game.

Halle Berry took daughter Nahla, 2, to the park. With her already striking good looks and piercing baby blues, Nahla might become a future Bond Girl like her mom.

Matthew McConaughey and partner Camilla Alves spent some family time together with son Levi, 2, and baby daughter Vida. McConaughey is currently filming Southbound with bombshell Eva Mendes.

Jennifer Aniston a perfumer

It's official. Jennifer Aniston has finally followed in the footsteps of many stars by launching her own fragrance. The new fragrance, called Lolavie, meaning "laughing at life," is set to launch first in the U.K. this June at Harrods. The scent will be subtle, light and natural. Aniston reveals that she wants people to say, "What is that? You smell great!"

Lindsay skips court for shopping

Lindsay Lohan was spotted shopping in Los Angeles just hours after she allegedly cut short a court date because of her "hectic schedule." The actress was due in court to attend an all-day deposition relating to a lawsuit from three men who have accused her of holding them hostage during a drunken drive through Malibu, California in 2007, as well as police officers finding cocaine in her car. Lohan was later spotted browsing through a Beverly Hills boutique trying on clothes with her sister.

Amanda gets real

Amanda Seyfried admits the pressure to be thin in Hollywood is "F--ked up." The Letters to Juliet star admits that while she has to be body-conscious and fit in order to get roles in Hollywood, not eating the foods she loves can make life boring. She said: "If I have to diet, it's salad with protein, salmon and broccoli, no dessert. But what kind of life is that? So I work out a lot and I'm just pretty moderate about what I eat."

Gosselin custody battle

As Kate Gosselin prepares to promote her new book, I Just Want You to Know: Letters to My Kids on Love, Faith and Family, and competes on Dancing with the Stars, the mom of eight is facing another battle with ex-husband Jon Gosselin over custody and child support of their kids. Jon Gosselin is claiming that Kate is never around, but the tough-as-nails mom and breadwinner of the family says, "I won't lose my kids. We're glued together, as a package, and nothing, nothing, will stop me from being with my kids."

"Old Blue Eyes" role up for grabs

Award-winning director Martin Scorsese has announced plans to make a movie based on the life of Frank Sinatra. The news of this film has sent Hollywood abuzz with several casting possibilities, including Johnny Depp, Leonardo DiCaprio, and Harry Connick Jr. Rumors are now swirling that George Clooney may also be in the running to play "Old Blue Eyes." Who do you think should get the part? Go to tribute.ca and vote!

Prince of Persia: The Sands of Time

Jake Gyllenhaal brings the popular video game character Prince Dastan to life on the big screen.

There have been many films made based on video games, but as Jake Gyllenhaal, who plays the title role of Prince Dastan in Prince of Persia: The Sands of Time—based on the popular video-game series—recently told about.com, those films often try too hard to replicate the game, instead of making a great movie with a strong plot. “As filmmakers, we started with the idea of making a story that was fun and entertaining and not just saying, ‘Is it going to look cool?’ We wanted to tell a great story. That was our primary focus.” Director Mike Newell (Harry Potter And the Goblet Of Fire) first came to the project not because of the action and effects, but because of the “immensely romantic” script.

But fear not, action fans. Prince of Persia is full of incredible visuals, spectacular effects and thrilling action. Gyllenhaal opted to do as many of his own stunts as he could. “I tried everything, but I didn’t always succeed at everything,” quipped Gyllenhaal to about.com. “So what I didn’t succeed at, someone else had to pull off. It was difficult, but also really fun.”

The film has an impressive supporting cast, including Ben Kingsley (Shutter Island) as the angry ruler and villain Nizam, the always-reliable Alfred Molina (Spider-Man 2) as Sheik Amar and the beautiful Gemma Arterton (Clash Of The Titans, Quantum Of Solace) as Princess Tamina. British star Arterton prepped for her part by spending time in Madrid training for her numerous horseback-riding scenes.

The story revolves around power and the possession of our most valuable commodity: time. The Sands of Time—a gift from the gods that can reverse time and allow its possessor to rule the world—is controlled by the evil Nizam as Dastan and Tamina join forces to defeat him.

Even though, like most popular video games, it has a tremendous following, Gyllenhaal didn’t seem pressured or concerned about living up to fans’ expectations and was purely interested with the depth of the character. “I was drawn to the role of Dastan because of his great sense of humor, and I loved the fact that he got to kick some butt,” Gyllenhaal has said.

So how good is Gyllenhaal at playing the actual video game? “I did play the original game version when I was a kid,” Gyllenhaal admitted. “For this role I picked up The Sands of Time version and it was pretty tough! I had a hard time with all of the levels. Maybe with a little more practice I can get better, but it was pretty cool!”

CITY

As the premiere of Sex and the City 2 approaches, we look back on how the TV and movie have made Sarah Jessica Parker and her gal pals fashion icons.

—By Waheeda Harris

It all started with a tulle skirt. When the first episode of Sex and the City debuted in June 1998, women didn't know that their lives and wardrobes were about to change. With the show's unique mix of reality and humor, Sex and the City's four characters—Carrie, Samantha, Miranda and Charlotte—were a welcome change. The distinct personalities of each of the four gave viewers a new girl-crush, and we started to covet each lady's onscreen style.

The opening credits of the television series didn't change during the six seasons. Sarah Jessica Parker's Carrie, wearing the now-iconic pink sleeveless top and white tulle skirt as a passing bus bearing her visage splashes her was the starting point of her fashion influence—distinct, sophisticated, whimsical and cutting-edge.

SJP's wardrobe constantly evolved, thanks to fashion doyenne Patricia Field, a well-respected fashionista, stylist and retailer in Manhattan. Field's approach was to cherry-pick from the runway, mix it with vintage and add in a pair of high heels. "If you just put the expected there, then it's not going to have that panache," Parker has said.

For fans, Carrie Bradshaw's influence had an immediate impact on their wardrobes. The first must-have was the nameplate necklace. The simple gold script spelling "Carrie" inspired us to wear our own versions, whether we were small-town or big-city residents. Next came Ray-Ban sunglasses, silk flower pins, bold accessories like large belts and multi-strand necklaces and of course, the shoes. Who can forget the shoes? Or the fact that Carrie stored the overflow of her shoe collection in her oven?

Sarah Jessica Parker launches Sex and the City-inspired fragrance: SJP NYC

It was just a matter of time until Sarah Jessica Parker spread her talent for fashion and beauty and married it together with her famous alter ego, Carrie Bradshaw. This spring, Parker is launching a special fragrance based on her Sex and the City character called SJP NYC, which is a fruity floral fragrance built around wild strawberry accord, lush gardenia and creamy musks.

"This fragrance was inspired by Carrie Bradshaw," Sarah Jessica Parker tells Tribute. "I was going to launch a fragrance in spring, and the idea of fashion and fragrance came together in my brain and how to marry the two and how to create something that was like a soufflé and whimsical. And I just love it! It's different from anything I've ever done."

Of course, for Sarah Jessica Parker and her SATC character, Carrie Bradshaw, the perfect fragrance encapsulating the feeling of freedom, possibilities, playfulness and, of course, fabulous style, is directly connected to their mutual true love: New York.

"I would say the ultimate New York woman is her own person," Parker says. "They can be any size, shape, color, ethnic background, political, ideological, and philosophically their own person... that's the beauty of New York. Nobody feels particularly responsible to be like anybody else."

—Toni-Marie Ippolito

Women began to covet Manolo Blahnik and Jimmy Choo shoes, considered wearing black bras under white T-shirts, men's underwear as sleepwear, and oh-so-pretty dresses on a regular basis. Carrie's fab wardrobe was filled with designers from both sides of the Atlantic such as Chanel, Chloe, Dior, Prada, Badgley Mischka, Cavalli, Marni, Tracey Feith, Halston, Celine, Vivienne Westwood, Dolce & Gabbana, Prada and Alexander McQueen.

In 2004, with the end of the series, Sarah Jessica Parker was honored by the Fashion Design Council of America with its Fashion Icon Award, recognizing the influence of her character as well as Parker's personal fashion style as she regularly graced red carpets and magazine covers.

In 2008, when Sex and the City: The Movie hit screens around the globe, it became the ultimate girls' night out. During the movie, Carrie is in a Vogue Magazine fashion shoot to showcase her wedding and wears Vivienne Westwood, Lanvin, Carolina Herrera, Vera Wang and Christian Dior dresses, fulfilling many of our fantasies of trying on wedding dresses by top labels. Many handbags stole scenes, causing a flurry at many retail boutiques as fans sought to copy the looks: an Eiffel Tower bag by Timmy Woods, a Chanel large CC white tote, a Fendi To You leather and feather evening bag or an I Love NY bag by Gucci.

But her influence didn't disappear with the end of the series. Parker now has created several fragrances: Lovely, The Lovely Collection, Covet and SJP NYC. She's worked with (now defunct) Steve & Barry to create her own budget clothing line, Bitten, which debuted in 2007. And in January of this year, Sarah Jessica Parker was named chief creative officer of Halston Heritage, which launched its spring collection in March.

As Sex and the City 2 arrives this month, fans are counting down the days to the latest revelations of fashion must-haves. Early reports see a mix of Middle Eastern styles on the ladies as the characters head to Abu Dhabi on holiday, and a new addition to the jewellery box has been previewed on Patricia Field's website: the Lucky Clover necklace.

With Penélope Cruz, Miley Cyrus and Liza Minnelli joining the girls in their escapade, who knows what trends may emerge for us to adopt? Clear your credit cards girls, there's new additions needed for the wardrobe!

Eclipse

Eclipse

June 30 Thriller

Robert Pattinson, Kristen Stewart, Billy Burke, Taylor Lautner, Peter Facinelli, Nikki Reed, Elizabeth Reaser, Kellan Lutz, Ashley Greene, Jackson Rathbone, Bryce Dallas Howard, Dakota Fanning, Cameron Bright

Keeping Bella alive is a tricky task for Edward and Jacob in The Twilight Saga: Eclipse.

Bella Swan (Kristen Stewart) does not want to be a teenage bride. She loves Edward Cullen (Robert Pattinson) with every fiber of her being, but the stigma of getting married straight out of high school has her cringing. That's not her only problem. James, the vampire who tried to kill her in Twilight, has a mate named Victoria who wants to kill Bella in revenge for his death.

One more thing: Bella has to become a vampire or the Cullens will be in danger from the Volturi. Bella longs to join the undead, but Edward refuses—he believes vampires have no soul and are therefore doomed. He loves Bella too much to risk her eternal soul. When it becomes clear she'll become one with or without his help, he reluctantly agrees to help her, but only if Bella will marry him first.

Not only does Bella have to make up her mind about marriage, she's frustrated because Edward doesn't want her to spend time with Jacob, who happens to be a werewolf. He's afraid Jacob could hurt Bella—werewolves are known for their bad tempers. However, Bella has a mind of her own and her independent nature pushes her to do what Edward fears most.

Meanwhile, a serial killer on the loose in nearby Seattle turns out to be Victoria, who's preparing an army of newborn vampires. Will Jacob and Edward be able to forget their differences and join forces to protect Bella?

That may sound like a lot of angst, but Taylor Lautner assured Tribute that the film has its share of humor. "Eclipse was my favorite book, so to bring that to life was amazing," he admitted. "It has my favorite scene of the entire series, which is the tent scene... It's a really funny scene. The movie's very dark, especially with our director, David Slade, but it's funny as well."

MANE MAN

Frank Barbosa, lead hair stylist for the upcoming Sex and the City 2 movie, talks about working with the Fab Four: Sarah Jessica Parker, Kim Cattrall, Kristin Davis and Cynthia Nixon, and creating the hair styles to match their famous fashions.

—By Toni-Marie Ippolito

When you found out you were going to work on Sex and the City 2, what was your reaction?

BARBOSA: It was like going to Disneyland—I was ecstatic! I was like, “Wow, I can’t believe I got this.” I was still pinching myself on set. I was very lucky to be invited on this team.

What was your inspiration for the looks?

BARBOSA: Well, I knew the visuals were going to be amazing, and I knew we had to bring it to a different realm with the hair part of everything. So what we did was create some amazing styles; we actually took it up and took it down. It is just going to go through so many variations; it’s going to be pretty amazing.

If you could describe each woman in one word, what would it be?

BARBOSA: Sarah Jessica Parker would be inspiration. She just inspires so many by being on the set every day. She is also a producer, so she helped us all out with that division. Kim: an amazing spirit. She just made you feel so comfortable and you could just hang out with her all day long. Cynthia, I would say knowledgeable. She’s a smart woman, very smart. Kristin, I would say quirky. She made you laugh all the time!

Are any of them like the characters they play?

BARBOSA: Kristin is very much like her character. I have to say SJP is very stylish—whether it comes to interior design to what she’s wearing to the make-up she puts on. Even when she comes in with big sunglasses and her hair in a ponytail, she always looks cute to me.

Tell me about the hair trends for spring?

BARBOSA: Everybody wanted waves this past year. In the past two years I’ve been working on films where everyone still wants the loose, Brigitte Bardot, wavy beautiful hair, and I think the sexier the better. I think free-flowing waves just make a woman look sexier. It also compliments the face and it’s not so structured and rigid. So I think that everyone just wants to feel a little sexier now.

I’ve noticed a lot of headpieces and scarves from the trailer.

BARBOSA: Yeah, headpieces are back in—anything dramatic and beautiful with fashion and style. I’m hoping that the runways for fall and winter will show a lot more hats and headpieces. I’m a big fan of hats.

How did you create SJP’s famous waves?

BARBOSA: Well, we used a lot of hairsprays, a lot of setting lotions and BC Repair Rescue treatment on the ends of their hair. We also used two sizes of flat irons. You can actually get, with the flick of the wrist, a very beautiful wave with a flat iron. That’s something we should all try. You can definitely incorporate those into making a wave and that’s what we did in the movie.

What’s with the ’80s look we’ve been seeing on the girls during filming?

BARBOSA: It’s just a flashback of how they all came together and it’s going to be really great. You know they’ve always been cutting-edge women, even back in the ’80s, so you know they’re going to bring a special edge to that era. So it’s going to be that extreme ’80s look you’re going to see.

Any favorite looks in particular that come to mind for you?

BARBOSA: One of my favorite looks is that white Halston Heritage dress on SJP—it’s beautiful in that opening scene. It’s just so breathtaking against the architecture of the building. That dress and beautiful wavy hair is just amazing.

THE CARRIE LOOK

Carrie's famed curls get coaxed into soft, sexy natural waves. Keep hair voluminous and touchable with BC hairtherapy Volume Boost Shampoo and Volume Boost Detangler. Add OSiS Glamour Queen Volume Spray – the water-free formula gives volume and soft hold, without ever weighing it down.

SHIA LABEOUF, Gemini, born June 11, 1986, Los Angeles, C.A. “Hollywood’s latest bad boy” is what Details magazine once dubbed Shia. Born under the sign of the eternal child, Geminis also tend to be prodigies. This magnetic star began his comedy career at age 10 before branching into acting two years later. His cheeky quiriness quickly made him a hit with the younger crowd. But he has a dark side to his dual Gemini personality, and also excels in more dramatic roles. His latest certainly qualifies: As the lead in Wall Street: Money Never Sleeps, he takes direction from venerable director Oliver Stone and holds his own in a cast of mature Hollywood heavy hitters. He should knock this out of the park and parlay it into a solid career. This is also a good year to tame the wild-child side that has led him to a few brushes with the law.

STAR STRUCK

What the stars have planned for you

ARIES (March 21 – April 20)

Now is the time for all good Rams to hit their marks. Make your pitch, send out the resume, ask for a promotion—these are your optimal months for success. Financial uncertainty still lurks in the wings, but by June you’ve got it under control. Follow your instincts heading into summer, especially regarding a romantic co-star.

TAURUS (April 21 – May 21)

Yes, you’ve finally got the bull by the horns—but now what? Much of the scenario is still a work in progress, but you make excellent gains come June. Your insight is especially keen around mid-month. Later, your passion finds a more sensual outlet, when an important question receives a favorable reply.

GEMINI (May 22 – June 21)

May is a tricky balancing act, the critical one between home and career. A breakthrough around the 27th could help you resolve it once and for all. You hit your stride in the party circuit in June. Some fun and frolic is refreshing, but more importantly the shmoozing helps open new directions, possibly a new life path.

CANCER (June 22 – July 22)

You’re dreamy and giddy with spring through May. Snap to it and make a clean sweep! Eliminate nagging issues from the past as well as any people or situations that just aren’t necessary. By June you get a hint of major career opportunities that lie ahead. Don’t leap at the first one; there are many more to come.

LEO (July 23 – August 23)

Everyone else has spring fever, yet your nose is tied to the grindstone most of May. Good thing, because your status is likely up for review. But you will have time to gather ye rosebuds, for most of June is sweetly and completely romantic. You’re also stage center and on everyone’s A-list, so enjoy.

VIRGO (August 24 – September 23)

Life’s highway takes some interesting twists and turns throughout May. Going along for the ride leads to eye-opening new experiences. A romantic pit stop could mark a relationship turning point. The pace quickens in June, with good and bad news on the career front. Difficult people try to throw up roadblocks, but your earning potential soars.

LIBRA (September 24 – October 23)

Ah, the lusty month of May. You and a significant other certainly prove the truth of the old saying. Mid-month, do pay some attention to improving the bottom line. It definitely takes two in June. Other people hold the key to luck and out-of-the-blue opportunity. Acquiring new knowledge is favored.

SCORPIO (October 24 – November 22)

Focus on the state of your union in May. Mostly content, you’ll still want to fine-tune the script. A getaway together provides ample opportunity to do so. Speaking of opportunity, June holds great promise to improve your working situation. You could be offered a lateral move, but consider carefully before you take the leap.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 – December 21)

Your energy and enthusiasm are muted in May. Most of your important relationships are under fire, and attention must be paid. But it’s all sunshine and light in June, with an active social life for good measure. By month’s end you’re crunching the numbers to see if you really can afford that mega-vacation. Be realistic.

CAPRICORN (December 22 – January 20)

Goal-oriented, you can sometimes run roughshod over others to get to the posts. Try a little more finesse and teamwork in May, when your quiet charm works wonders. The rewards begin to roll in during June. Take a break from the routine as often as you can. Short getaways are favored, but long-distance travel is iffy.

AQUARIUS (January 21– February 18)

To spend or not to spend—that is the question for most of May. Be nobler of mind and resist any impulse buys, and come up with a long-term plan. June ushers in an intense and exuberant time for relationships. New connections can be made in the most unlikely places, one of which will be life-altering.

PISCES (February 19 – March 20)

Busy, busy, busy—yet why do you seem to be going nowhere? Relax, it’s just a bout of late-spring fever, and by the end of May you’re making great progress. Your home is your romantic refuge in June. A collusion of planets spells either a sudden windfall or major expense. Either way, you eventually come out way ahead.

Adam Sandler and Jennifer Aniston on set of Just Go With It

Cameron Diaz and Justin Timberlake film Bad Teacher

Angelina Jolie and Johnny Depp in The Tourist

Robert Pattinson filming Bel Ami in Hungary

Stars on set

It's always exciting to see two new, and hot, stars work together for the first time. In this case, it's Angelina Jolie and Johnny Depp for The Tourist. The movie, being filmed in Venice, Italy, focuses on a man named Frank (Depp), an American tourist visiting Italy to mend a broken heart. He then meets Elise (Jolie), an extraordinary woman who deliberately crosses his path. And who better to tantalize than Jolie?

But while men swoon over Jolie, the ladies will go mad to see their beloved Robert Pattinson as he drops his cool Edward Cullen duds for period piece costume wear in Bel Ami. The movie, which is currently being filmed in Hungary, sees Pattinson's character, George Duroy, as a young man who rises to power in Paris via his manipulation of the city's most influential and wealthy women. He is joined by co-stars Christina Ricci and Uma Thurman.

Back in the present day, Jennifer Aniston sticks with the comedy genre and joins Adam Sandler in the upcoming comedy Just Go With It. The film revolves around Sandler's character, who recruits Aniston to pose as his soon-to-be-divorced wife and her kids to pretend to be his fake family. Nicole Kidman is also on board, taking an uncredited role that Variety describes "as similar in comedic scope to Tom Cruise's uncredited turn in Tropic Thunder."

It seems that Cameron Diaz is also "just going with it." Rumors are swirling that she wants her ex, Justin Timberlake, back in her arms. The pair is currently together filming Bad Teacher. A source recently dished to a UK paper, the Mirror, that in the beginning things were awkward with the pair but soon things started to heat up. "But things went back to how they'd always been between the pair," said a source. "They were fooling around off camera...there is undeniable chemistry. Word is that Justin and Cameron are on. It is the worst-kept secret on set, and everyone, from the make-up artists to the canteen staff, are gossiping about them. They do make a really cute couple."

CRUSADING FOR A CHUNK-FILLED CANADA!
